An Elephant Sitting Still, a short story by Hu Bo

SRP: $ 29.95 UPC# 6-98452-21443-6

Considered a landmark of Chinese cinema, Hu Bo's An Elephant Sitting Still is a furious indictment of the spiritual costs wrought by China's economic boom from the perspective of those at the bottom of society. Taking place over a single day in an unnamed industrial city in northern China, the film's interlocking the lives of a number of protagonists, painting a portrait of a society marked by selfishness.

The New York Times Critic's Pick

"Powerfully Absorbing...

An act of solemn, disciplined and passionate protest."

—A.O. Scott, The New York Times

"One of the greatest recent films...
Should become an enduring classic"

—Richard Brody, The New Yorker

"This is a film of extraordinary beauty, invention, and grace."

—Jonathan Romney, Film Comment
