“FILLED WITH INSPIRING SPEECHES, MUSIC, FOOTAGE OF ACTIONS, AND VOICES FROM AROUND THE WORLD.”

- Whole Terrain Journal

As world governments struggle to meet the aspirational limit of 1.5°C of global warming agreed to at COP21 in Paris, a new campaign is targeting the fossil fuel industry in an effort to withdraw its social license to operate. DIVEST! Chronicles 350.org's 'Do the Math' bus tour across the United States in 2012 as it launched the fossil fuel divestment campaign onto the national and international stage.

Joined by special guests, 350.org founder Bill McKibben lays out the findings in his landmark Rolling Stone article 'Global Warming's Terrifying New Math' and makes the moral and historical case for divestment. Three years after the 'Do the Math' tour, over 500 institutions representing over three trillion dollars in assets have committed to divest. The campaign is winning, but with the clock ticking down the question remains: will the victories add up enough to matter?
