

NEW FROM DISTRIB FILMS US

From Gianni Di Gregorio, Italy's laconic answer to Larry David, returns to his humanist comic origins of his arthouse hits Mid-August Lunch and The Salt of Life.

"This is a gem."
— EMPIRE MAGAZINE

"Amiable, Rome-set comedy."
— Emma Simmonds, THE LIST

"A light, frisky Italian comedy."
— David Jenkins, LITTLE WHITE LIES

"Citizens of the World is a gentle celebration of good company, good wine and good intentions."
— TIMEOUT

Three retirees decide to move away from Rome to find a better standard of living in a country where their meagre pensions will go that much further. Planning for the trip sees the trio trawl the pubs and restaurants of a sun saturated Rome and discover that even at an old age they can still learn one or two lessons about themselves and life. Gianni Di Gregorio, Italy's laconic answer to Larry David, returns to the humanist comic territory of arthouse hits Mid-August Lunch and The Salt of Life with Citizens of the World, a warm and delightful reflection on life with characters you'll want to spend many more hours with long after the credits roll. (Curzon)
